The chaste woman loves her husband from the heart, embraces, soothes, and pleases him, acts the slave to him, and is obedient to him in all things, except when she would be disobedient to God... Foolish, therefore, is every husband who separates his wife from the fear of God; for she who does not fear God is not afraid of her husband. If she fears not God, who sees what is invisible, how will she be chaste in her unseen choice?

From The Clementine Homilies - Homily XIII (Chap. XIII To Chap. XIX) - Peter On Chastity In Marriage
